F.I. Goldhaber's words capture people, places, and events with a photographer's eye and a poet's soul. As a reporter, editor, business writer, and marketing communications consultant, they produced news stories, feature articles, editorial columns, and reviews for newspapers, corporations, governments, and non-profits in five states. Now paper, electronic, and audio magazines, books, newspapers, calendars, street signs, and micro 'zines display their poetry, fiction, and essays. More than 260 of their poems appear in almost 100 publications. They also published more than ten erotic and transgressive novels, dozens of short stories, and a collection of erotic poetry under other names.

In addition, F.I. shared their words at events throughout the Pacific Northwest and on the radio. They appear at venues such as Wordstock, Oregon Literary Review, bookstores, libraries, galleries, coffee shops, bars, record stores, and community colleges and give presentations on subjects as diverse as indie publishing, marketing, writing erotica, and building volunteer organizations.

A graduate of the University of Washington, F.I. lives in Oregon with their spouse and writing partner, J.W. Goldhaber. They judged the PNWA Literary Contest and the EPPIE Awards (as well as national and international erotica writing competitions), read to elementary-school children as a SMART volunteer, and served as president of two Lions Clubs International clubs and as an Eye Courier.
